We dedicate this, the twenty-fifth edition of the Key, to Evanston Township High School. Throughout the twenty-five years in which the Key has been recording the school's history, ETHS has maintained an unparalleled level of academic excellence. We only hope that radical changes in the school and community will not stop future Key staffs from making similarly laudatory dedications.

Moberly forced to find funds

The 1974-75 school year brought with it many administrative problems for first year superintendent Dr. David Moberly. Dr. Moberly was forced to deal with such problems as the lack of funds, the rising security problem, the dismissal of many non-tenured teachers, and reorganizing the administration of the school.

"If we can solve our financial problem, I am certain we can remain one of the top high schools in the nation," said Dr. Moberly. "We already have the facilities, the faculty, and the student body to maintain the excellence that has been Evanston High School. The financial problem is the only thing standing in our way. We're going to have to solve that problem in Springfield because it is practically the only source we have left."

Dr. Moberly also sees improvement in the security situation as a vital part of the fight to keep Evanston on a high level.

"In my own mind, I cannot advocate cutting the security staff until I see some evidence that this building can be completely secure. Of course this means instead of spending money on teacher salaries, we must spend this money on security."

The past school year presented many problems for Dr. Moberly, but he feels confident that all the problems are solvable.

"If we can get the support we need, Evanston Township High School will remain one of the top secondary school programs anywhere."

Curriculum skills emphasized

The English Department this year stressed total mastery of reading and writing skills.

Having been impressed by the reactions of college faculty to the abysmally amateur level of writing by incoming students, the faculty detailed plans for a long range project in progress.

Folders will be kept to follow a student's progress through high school, including all of his English examinations. This accumulated work will be studied, and help will be offered when needed.

BACON ENGLISH DEPARTMENT Seated: Jackie Pettiford, Elizabeth White (Chairperson), Marcia Harding, Kim Alexander. Standing: George Seidenbecker, John Stamos, Joyce Treffman, Tom Hoffman, John Reque.

New SS program introduced

Several new programs were initiated into the Social Studies curriculum this year. These additions affected students from all four student levels.

Beardsley freshmen had the opportunity of fulfilling their 1 English and 1 History of Civilization credit by taking the courses together, in a team-taught class.

A curriculum change affecting upperclassmen was an elective history program. Juniors were able to fulfill their U. S. History requirement in Michael school by selecting four of twenty available classes. The purpose of this was to give students a chance to learn about varied parts of our country's history.

Seniors become teachers

In order to provide extra help for freshman students who were unable to get to their teachers, the CS department initiated a new program to aid those students. This program involved the seniors working with freshmen. According to Mr. Dean Hanebuth, CS department chairman, "Seniors participating in the program would assist freshman CS classes during their free mods." He added, "The seniors would help teach students the English basics and committee skills."

Several freshman classes studying Rome held an ancient Roman festival which was run completely by the students.

Brains build bridges

Armed with balsa wood and glue, twenty-seven students attempted to assemble winning constructions for the bridge-building contest sponsored by the Physics Department. Masterpieces completed, the contest became a test of survival. Whose bridge could continue to stand? John Spriegel and Mike Green were the winners.

On the more serious side of the Science Department, ISIS (Individualized Science Instruction System) was back at ETHS for the second year. In addition, the Science Department was newly organized into sub-committees in an attempt to make the system more innovative. These committees ranged from individual research to environmental education.

Computers converse at ETHS

"Better communications with the computer" was what the Math Department probably had in mind when they incorporated IITRAN into ETHS's system. According to Mr. May, head of the department, IITRAN (a special computer language developed by the Illinois Institute of Technology) was simple enough to involve students from every math class. To achieve this hoped-for student participation, a large number of math teachers were learning how to teach computer programming.

Countries' culture emphasized

The Foreign Language Department underwent many changes this year. Some of the changes included the employment of new teachers for Hebrew, Spanish, French, Russian, Italian, and English as a second language.

The curriculum changed also, with the addition of more etymology classes, and the revision of texts for first year Spanish and second year French. According to Mr. Turrell Lavering, Curriculum Supervisor of the department, "The changes in texts will make lessons more comprehensible for students. This change will especially benefit the incoming freshmen, who are new to a foreign language." There was also greater diversity and emphasis on the cultural aspects of the languages in the foreign language classes.

The Foreign Language Fair was held again for a second time this year in E112.

Speech Team reorganizes

Mr. Wallace Smith assumed the post of Curriculum Supervisor of the Speech Arts Department this year. Though there was no change made in the program, there was a general feeling of motivation and incentive among students this year. This developed through greater student participation within the department.

An effort was also made this year to serve other areas and to cooperate with District 65. Student directed projects were performed for other departments. Mr. Smith added that there was a student trend to create new ideas, rather than copying the teachers.

One of the department's more exciting projects this year was the reorganization of the speech team. For the first time there were auditions and a "Kick-Off Dinner" for the team. The team also elected a council of eight students, which formed such plans as making t-shirts for the team.

Mr. Smith summed up the goal of the Department by saying, "ETHS has always worked on the front of new ideas, and we want to continue to do so."

Moog sets mood

The Music Lab and an electronic synthesizer were added this year to the Music Department. The Music Lab made it possible for small ensembles, special interest groups, and Honors groups to receive transcript recognition for their work. The synthesizer was one of the attractions of the recently implemented Electronic Music course, which provided the opportunity for interested students to concentrate in this area.

Also new this year was the trend towards utilizing community and area resources for musical education. Guest artists were brought in, not only to entertain, but to instruct.

An exciting first was ETHS's participation in the nationally observed "Music In Our Schools Days." As Dr. Rosewall, head of the department, explained, "The purpose of this day was to bring everyone's attention to music in the schools."

And what's in the future for the Music Department? The current rumor is something about a harpsicord.....

Art enrollment increases

Each year, the Art department awards a 1,000 dollar scholarship to the single most outstanding member of the senior art class. This year, there was a slight problem. "We had it all narrowed down to two people," said Mr. Lewis, head of the department," and just couldn't decide between them." Finally the decision was made to give both students, Elsa Jacobson and Marianne Kawaguchi, a scholarship.

Not only was 1975 a year of winners, but a year of rising trend in student art interest. According to Mr. Lewis, "Students appreciate art more greatly now than in the past and I hope they continue to feel that way."

Boys P.E. goes Co-ed

In continuing its quest for interesting and varied programming, the Boys Physical Education Department began to explore the merits of coeducational physical education.

This year the program included badminton and volleyball. While no enlargement of the program is forecast, attempts will be made to cross-schedule both the girls' and boys' P.E. classes. In this way more students can participate in the program.

The National Youth Physical Fitness program continued and was expanded to include not only the freshmen and sophomores, but the juniors and seniors as well.

Girls' Sports expands

The Girls' Physical Education Department continued its extensive program this year under the new department chairperson, Ms. Ann Stevens. Ms. Stevens replaced Ms. Margaret Bourne who retired last year.

Changes in the program included several new programs offered for juniors and seniors. Among them was water polo which replaced canoeing, which added a new dimension to GPE this year. Also added to the curriculum were two co-ed courses: volleyball and badminton.

A new program for sophomores was instigated this year. The class was geared toward the highly skilled girls and centered upon group sports.

New courses offered

In spring the Home Economics Department sponsored a Career Fair for men and women. Professionals spoke on home economic-related jobs in the Old Faculty Dining Room, while films were shown in the Little Theatre.

Child Study classes celebrated the Week of The Young Child (April 17) by giving money and toys to child care agencies.

The Boutique class was added to the curriculum this year. It ran a gift shop and made party prints, note paper, wall hangings and hand towels.

Field trips included a visit to the Frank Lloyd Wright home in Oak Park by the Interior Design class. The Consumer Home Economics class went on a two-day trip to Jewel Foodwares.

Driver's Ed. changes seats

This year, the Driver Education Department tried a new teaching approach. The "task analysis" system was replaced with an eight-day cycle in which the student had the same teacher for class, simulation, and range. This method was more beneficial to the student because it established a continuity between the theoretical and practical aspects of the course. In addition, it enabled the teacher to become better acquainted with the students, and thus more prepared to evaluate the student's strengths and weaknesses.

Industrial programs introduced

Industrial Arts started off the year with an all-time high in enrollment; so high in fact, that not every course could meet the demand.

This year, for the first time, committees consisting of people from the outside community were brought in to analyze several industrial arts programs. Mr. Clanton, head of the department, conceded that the number of areas studied had been limited. "But," he added, "we hope to cover all areas in the near future."

The Industrial Arts Department was also hit by the wave of course name changes this year. They changed Service Station Management to Automotive Professional Training.

Students find employment

Although no new programs were added this year in the Business Education Department, enrollment still rose sharply.

The main reason for this increase was the discovery of the job opportunities available for students through the Business Education Department.

"Businesses are waiting for trained young people to work as key punch operators, secretaries, computer programmers and general clerical workers," commented Mr. William Carpenter, Department Supervisor. The recession hasn't hit ETHS students yet; Mr. Carpenter has been able to place over 90% of his students in jobs.

The Distributive Education Department took an active part in community affairs this year. They held their annual Christmas party for the retarded in Parks School.

Counselors enter classrooms

"More counselor participation in the classroom," was the way Dr. Dorothy Magett summed up the counseling changes that took place in Bacon school. This year, instead of being scheduled to any English classes, students were assigned to specific English teachers depending upon who their counselors were. In the future, other schools may adopt this system.

Ms. Quane bids farewell

This year, the entire Special Ed. Department was sad to note the retirement of Ms. Quane, head of the program for many years. Since Ms. Quane's arrival at ETHS, the program has grown from a practical non-entity to a diverse structure covering approximately fifteen areas.

"I don't know what we're going to do without her," lamented Ms. Quane's secretary of six years. "She's done so much." In fact, with only two weeks left at ETHS, Ms. Quane was still energetically organizing last minute details.

How the department will fair without Ms. Quane is a mystery. However, the verdict is almost certain to be positive. Although Ms. Quane will be leaving, the firm foundation she has laid for the ETHS Special Ed. Department will remain.

Sexism reversal at Homecoming

Men's liberation struck a blow at tradition this year with the coming of kings to the E.T.H.S. Homecoming Court. The lucky "first four" were Tad Kepper and Nat Page from Beardsley, Carlos McCaine, Bacon, and Larry Lubin, Boltwood; the queens were Alison Pieters and Karen Williams from Bacon, Trina Woodson from Boltwood, and Cheri Wilburn from Beardsley.

The kings and queens were announced at the pep rally which was held on Oct. 25 in the Beardsley Gym. In addition, the winner of the float contest was the entry from Bacon school whose theme was "Wildkits Energy Unleashed."

Student enthusiasm was one tradition that remained unbroken this year, considering the fact that a great number of students attended the pep rally. The school spirit was also present that afternoon when the Kits smashed Morton East 55-0.

YAMO: It didn't hurt a bit

Yamo, now seventeen years old, was entitled,"It Won't Hurt a Bit," as the show was presented for the third year in the Upstairs Theatre. The scenery consisted of headings and photographs flashed onto screens directly above and behind the stage.

The two act musical-variety show opened with the discovery of dentistry by earliest man. This theme was carried through the second act with a parody of a typical T.V. game show, "Dentist's Choice."

Saccharine films, etiquette, exorcisms, commercials, and record companies all took a beating, as did foreign films in "La Schmaltza Velveeta," and speed reading advertisements in "Thou Shalt Speed."

Quietly, the YAMO Pantomime Company charmed its audience with frequent segments of its own; the YAMO Chorus assembled to sing "Standstill;" the YAMO Dance Company glided through its appearance with Tolkien and tap dancing; and the YAMO Orchestra provided an innovative background throughout.

An all-cast, Jewish-Western spoof, "Fiddler on the Hoof," was a numbing ending to the student-produced, totally original, and totally painless show.

Novice thespians featured

This year's Speech Arts Department presented three one-act plays. The plays involved twelve freshmen and a mixture of sophomores, juniors and seniors. Many of them made their first appearance in the theater.

The director, Ms. Robin Hinderyckx, commented on the program, "The purpose of these plays was to introduce the cast to the theater. Hopefully this will help them with their high school acting careers."

The program consisted of three separate plays each containing only one act. All three plays dealt with the bizarre and mysterious. The plays ranged from insane asylums to cold-blooded murder plots. The characters ranged from Queen Isabella to Osa Johnson. Whatever the case, the mood was eerie, the audience in suspense, and the show a success.

Yule music in festival

In celebration of the Christmas holidays, the ETHS Music Department again held a Holiday Music Festival. The festival was held on December 6 and 7 in the auditorium.

During the festival, the Music Department showed a varied repetoire of both vocal and instrumental music. In the choral slice of the festival were the ETHS Choir, under the direction of Dr. Richard Rosewall, the Freshman Glee Clubs, the Chorus, the Girl's Choir, and the Mastersingers, directed by Mr. Milner Seifert.

In the instrumental part of the show were the award-winning Jazz Band, the Brass Choir, and the Concert Band, directed Mr. Don Owens, the Cadet Orchestra and the Chamber Strings, directed by Dr. Alvin Mistak, and the Symphonic Band, the Woodwind Choir, directed by Mr. William Idle. The Marimba Ensemble and the Cadet Band were also featured performers.

Teachers take-off to England

This year's Speech Arts Department took a step backwards into time all the way to the year 1892, with the Brandon Thomas production of Charley's Aunt.

Mr. B. K. Siewerth was the director for the all-faculty cast. The play involved the frustrations of two young, ambitious college boys who were seeking the marriage of two respectable girls. In their attempts to catch the girl of their choice, the boys involved the love affairs of not only themselves, but that of their fathers, friends, and even a few strangers. The result was chaos which accounts for the humor in the play.

"The play was a lot of work, but well worth the effort," said Mr. Bryant, who played Charley's aunt. He added, "I think the audience over-looked the tremendous job the kids on crew did; they were simply fantastic." Mr. David Foote enjoyed his part of Jack Chesney. He felt, "The play was great, and I love being a ham."

Showcase puzzles audience

Writers' Showcase, the English Department's annual production of student writing, celebrated its tenth year anniversary in 1975 with "Conundrum." The show's twelve actors dealt with the "problems, paradoxes and perplexities" that face students every day, by use of poems, slides, monologue and various other techniques.

"This year," added Mr. David Foote, faculty sponsor, "we feel we presented an entertaining show, balanced with clever humor and serious works well interpreted." Patti Shore was student director, and Lisa Hsia, its student producer.

Highlights of the show included a satire on foreign language entitled "Anatomy of a Classic" and the inner desires of a worm in "Eulogy of a Worm."

Bizzare play performed

What strange happenings occur at this private parochial boys' school? What villain is behind the incredible and bizzare events? Child's Play is an allegory about hate destroying people and ruining a school The play, which was performed by an all-male cast of fifteen, was directed by Mr. B. K. Siewerth. It was presented in the Upstairs Theatre.

The magnificent set, also designed by Mr. Siewerth, was "one of the most complex ever constructed here," according to Siewerth. The Tony Award winning play, written by Robert Marasco, had a great reception by its audiences.

The contrast between good and evil was a major question in this play. It was displayed by a conflict between a friendly, well-liked teacher played by Jon Chapell and a mysterious, hated layman played by Tom White.

Chi-town, Masque unveiled

Pantomime, dancing, and movement were the mediums used in "Masque," the annual Esande dance club concert.

The name for the concert was taken from a form of aristocratic entertainment of 16th century England, consisting of pantomime and dancing by amateur performers.

Included in the program were two mime performances by Dan Garber and Barb Merar. A total of fifteen numbers were included in the show. The dances ranged from jazz to folk.

Highlights included "Volutie," choreographed by Julie Brown; "Ritorned" by Ginger Farley; "Candide" by Claudia Kovitz and Kathe Telingator; "Evanescence" by Kris Bond and Kim Noor; "Moods" by Alison Pieters; and "Ophelia" by Wendy Waters.

Six villanious thugs crashed this year's Aquette Show, setting off cherry bombs and scaring the audience to death. Pandemonium was about to break out when, in the nick of time, Supercop Dick Tracy appeared on the scene. With a remarkable show of muscles, Tracy took on all six foes in a fight that inevitably ended with the scoundrels on the bottom of the pool. Seconds later, all seven members of the number "A Tribute to Chester Gould and Dick Tracy" stood on the deck to receive a deafening round of applause.

The cop and robbers act was only one of the many sketches making up the Aquettes' "Our Kind of Town," a synchronized swimming masterpiece thematically centered around the city of Chicago. The acts were as diverse as Chicago itself, depicting everything from the Chicago Fire, complete with Mrs. O'Leary's diabolical cow, to the Saint Patrick's Day Parade.

Classic chorale presented

Mendelssohn's Elijah presented by the Music Department in the spring was a truly spectacular production. Included in the performance were 250 student voices, a full symphony orchestra, a pipe organ, and six soloists.

"Open the Heavens and Send Us Relief" was one of the operatic appeals sung in Elijah. A series of duets, solos, and choruses all appeared throughout the performance.

Elijah was presented in place of a spring musical. According to the Music Department, they will switch every year from a musical to a chorale piece, such as Elijah, in order to meet budget demands.

Oliver!: audience wants more

Oliver! was presented in the Upstairs Theatre this year as one of the three plays in the annual Repertory Festival. This marks only the second time in the history of the festival that a musical was shown.

Oliver! was also noteworthy for another reason. This was the first time in the history of ETHS drama that junior high students were used in a play. Eighth graders were cast in the roles of orphans in the workhouse, thieves, and of course the title character. One cast member said, "It was really fun, working with the junior high kids. They really seem to be dedicated to the success of the show."

The production was double-cast, with the players numbering over eighty.

An unprecedented effect of staging was employed this year. Bill Sykes, played by Jon Chappell and Charles Ballard, fell twelve feet from the "London Bridge" to an elevated platform padded with mattresses.

Mr. William Ditton was Oliver's director. "Of course," said Mr. Ditton, "when a production of this size is double-cast, one group is generally stronger than another. This year, however, I think that the casts were complementary."

The show was very successful, in fact so successful that people paid for standing room only tickets. One SRO spectator said, "I don't mind sitting in the aisle when I'm seeing as good a musical as this."

Variety presented in Festival

"What in fact is this play concerned with? I think we are entitled to ask . . . does this play know where it is going?" These were the words of the critics in the play The Real Inspector Hound, produced for the Spring Repertory Festival.

This play-within-a-play is a spoof of a murder mystery. It deals with two critics, Moon and Birdboot (Allison Burnett and Paul Robertson), who are observing a mystery. During the course of the mystery, the Inspector Hound and another character, Simon Gascoyne, (played by Dan Greenberger and Mike Engler) are killed. They take seats in the audience and Moon and Birdboot take their places in the play. As one cast member, Allison Burnett, said: "This play is by far the most fulfilling thing I've ever been involved in." The play was directed by Mr. B.K. Siewerth.

The lights flicker to different parts of the stage: a courtroom, two gossips, a bar. The illumination of these and other spots helped to unfold the plot of The Rimers of Eldritch, a tense drama directed by Robin Hinderyckx.

"We all worked really hard together," said Nina Nash, a cast member. "But," she added, "I've never had so much fun in my life!"

Music invades Auditorium

The annual Spring Music Festival was presented this year during the last weekend of the school year, on June 6 and 7 in the Auditorium.

The Festival involved 18 different musical groups. Among the performers were the Symphony Orchestra, the ETHS Choir, the Mastersingers and the Chorale.

Also featured were several student composers, conductors and soloists. All seniors, they were: Marion Brandis, Ginny Karel, Diane Delin, Mark Ingebretsen and John Brolley.

Faculty conductors were Mr. Seifert, Dr. Mistak, Mr. Owens, Mr. Idle and Dr. Rosewall.

Blood sought at ETHS

Teachers in blue jeans, students in business suits-all were present in Michael School as Michael Student Council sponsored their third annual Turnabout Day.

In a more serious vein, Michael Council also sponsored a Blood Drive. The Drive was planned to help alleviate the serious shortage of blood facing hospitals.

Mr. Robert Roth was the Faculty Chairman for the drive, and Ruth Miller the Student Chairperson. Vicky Austin, Donor Chairperson for Michael School said, "It was very gratifying working on a project that saves lives."

Beardsley Math Department presented the first Beardsley Math Fair. The project gave students a chance to exhibit their puzzles, games, and geometric models.

Chessmen lose title

The ETHS chess team lost its title as "Nation's Best" this year at the National High School Championships in New York.

After winning the Midwest Championships and a second place showing in the Illinois High School Association Championships, the team only managed to place fourteenth at the Nationals.

The team looks forward to next year and a chance at a comeback, with players Steve Fortado, Joel Kanter and Mark Stein returning as seniors.

The Bridge Club took second place at an unofficial state bridge contest. The secret behind the club's success is sponsor Richard Hall's "duplicating tournament" training method. This gives each player a chance to make the most of any given hand.

Quickwits take first place

The ETHS "It's Academic" team reigns as state champions after defeating Amos Alonzo Stagg and Joliet.

Ms. Naomi Brodkey, Boltwood Combined Studies teacher, coached the winning team of William Beaty, Rick Pildes, and captain Scott Burris. She commented, "It's Academic is absolutely marvelous! This is the first year I've coached anything; I knew they would win, but it's reassuring that they did."

The combined winnings from all four games the team has played total $1,400 from the Manilow Foundation, a set of encyclopedias, a set of books by Sir Walter Scott and a set of books on archaeology.

"Esande was more community oriented this year," commented Ms. Williams, head of the dance group.

After their ETHS show, the group expanded into surrounding Evanston. First was a performance for the South Maywood Senior Citizens. The performance was given to show the older people some wholesome high schoolers.

Esande also gave a series of lecture presentations to elementary and junior high school aged students. The purpose of this series was to give future high schoolers an idea of what the high school organizations were like. According to Ms. Williams, "Perhaps this will encourage interested girls to become involved in Esande when they reach the high school level."

Seniors become involved

"The purpose of each board is to promote the intramural program and push the kids to participate in it," said Ms. Henrietta Berning, who is the sponsor for Bacon's, Beardsley's, Boltwood's, and Michael's sports boards.

This year the boards ran three major intramural tournaments: a swim meet, gymnastics meet, and a track and field meet.

The Senior Leaders are a group of senior girls in the GPE program who help instruct underclassmen. Their work week includes five days of reporting to gym class, instead of the usual three. After completing a six week unit, the girls are permitted to take a vacation from gym class for an equal period of time. In the program, the girls assisted with such activities as swimming, gymnastics, badminton, volleyball and others.

Cheerers charm Chicago

ETHS team spirit intensified this year, as the orange and blue cheerleaders cheered Evanston to victory in rain or shine. This year they were even equipped with clear plastic raincoats in order to protect themselves from stormy weather.

The twenty-four sophomores and varsity cheerleaders were chosen for gymnastic ability and enthusiasm as well as appearance.

Not only did they cheer for football, basketball, soccer games and pep rallies, but also for the Blood Drive. During the Christmas Season they ushered Santa Claus into Evanston. This year they also cheered for the 26th International Achievement Conference in Chicago. The program was entitled "You're Tops," and included dinner and a chauffeur. Ms. Jones felt that this was a highpoint of the year for the cheerleaders. She also felt that this year's girls were all well-qualified.

Pep Club makes comeback

Whoever said that school spirit was a dying institution? Take ETHS, for instance. At every single football game a strange group of kids, called the Pep Club, ran around in bright blue sweaters yelling, "Wildkits got it!"

Their enthusiasm was only matched by the big orange mascot, Willie Wildkit. The encouragement of both the Pep Club and Willie was an incredible boost to the morale of the teams throughout the year.

Between games the Pep Club painted posters, pushed banners in orange and blue, and sold buttons. "They're a very active and spirited group," praised Ms. Mosser, the Pep Club's adult advisor.

Staff teaches kids

"Aquatic Staff is fun to work in if you enjoy teaching young children and if you enjoy swimming," said Mr. William Sharp, director of the program.

Students on the Aquatic Staff are mainly sophomores, juniors, and seniors. The staff taught children aged seven to thirteen how to swim every Saturday for 26 weeks.

"It's a really good activity," commented one member of the Staff, "because you don't have to be a real jock to do it."

Scuba sinks at ETHS

Those who were interested in meeting fellow divers joined the Scuba Club this year. The Club also scheduled lessons, which were taught by a scuba instructor in the ETHS pool.

Laughter echoed through ETHS halls after school this year as members of Pun Club exchanged their favorite jokes on various themes and projects. This was the Club's second year in existence. Mr. George Seidenbecker was pleased with this year's club, and felt that more people from all four grade levels were involved.

The Amateur Radio Club was designed to help students receive amateur F.C.C. licenses. The members of the club concentrated on seminars of radio theory and Morse Code. Once a member has a license, he can set up his own broadcasting station at home or converse with other amateurs around the world on the school's transmitter, W9ESA. This hobby is unique in that the federal government supports it by setting up amateur-use only bands.

Councils merge for concert

The Cross-Four Councils sponsored a concert held in the ETHS gym. Two seniors, Paul Engler and Eric Singer, were the masterminds behind the Harvey Mandel and Weapons of Peace Concert held in March. The purpose of the concert was simply for students to enjoy themselves.

Boltwood Council sponsored a major revision of the student progress report. The council established new, positive columns to be added to the present reports. The council sponsored a Save the Children Foundation program, and participated in fund raising efforts for Muscular Dystrophy.

Beardsley Council departed from traditional election procedures and decided instead to appoint officers who were interested in executive positions. The council's main accomplishment was the party held for underprivileged children which they sponsored.

It's Renior! It's Picasso! No, it's Michael Student Council. The occasion was Paint-In Day in Michael School. Members of the Council whipped through the Cafeteria, the lounges, and innumerable teacher's rooms, leaving wet paint behind them. The results were a newly decorated school.

With equal energy, the Council threw itself into the Blood Drive for the third year in a row. The Student Chairperson, and mastermind behind the success, was Ruth Miller. In addition, they sponsored several jazz concerts, a Leadership Breakfast, and Turn-about Day.

This year was also the year of sparkling creativity for Bacon Council. Not only did they paint the Senior Lounge, but plans have been made for the Cafeteria.

The remainder of the Council's energies was spent in organizing a Christmas party for underprivileged children.

Trish Collins and Dr. Nash share words at the "I Make a Difference" recognition tea.

CS'ers party with freshmen

Dancing was the theme at the Combined Studies Council's pre-Christmas dance. Mr. Hanebuth, the Council's Supervisor, felt, "The dance was tremendously successful. Not only did the kids enjoy themselves, but the dance widened the number of kids interested in joining C.S. Council."

Along the line of parties, the Council also held a bash for incoming freshmen. The purpose of the party was to make the freshmen more comfortable in the large high school atmosphere of ETHS.

Ski Club has good times

Imagine fifty students staring in rapt wonder, as the master of ceremonies (alias a representative from a sports store) introduced sleek models wearing the latest designs in slope-wear. Who would sponsor a fashion show at ETHS? The answer, of course, is the Christie Ski Club.

The club also sponsored a trip to Steamboat Springs, Colorado. 63 people signed up for the trip. Unfortunately, due to damage done to the resort that the club stayed at, and theft occurring on the plane ride home, the club was placed on probation.

Job offers attract students

The Office Occupations and Office Education organizations saw a rise in student enrollment this year. According to Ms. Petzold, club sponsor, "The interest in students to learn office skills is constantly rising. It seems more and more students are seriously thinking about careers in office work."

The Distributive Education Club had a winner this year. Laura Fleming was promoted to state officer of the Distributive Education Clubs of Illinois. According to Mr. Osterkamp, club sponsor, there have been several ETHS students competing in both state and nation-wide contests, but several of the winners have not yet been announced.

Why the rise in student participation this year? According to one member of the Distributive Education Club, "There is just more need for students like us, and it pays."

Instrumental techniques varied

During the football season, the Concert and Symphonic Bands formed the Wildkit Marching Band. When the Wildkits finished their smashing season, the two bands respectively split apart.

Hard work and long rehearsals produced the sounds of these two bands. According to Mr. Don Owens, director of the Concert Band, "Each group has its own certain character, so you need to approach them differently in order for them to play their best."

Mr. Owens, head of the electronic studio, took some time out from his high-voltage creations to write the contemporary music for the strings that were featured in this year's January Concert. In addition to Mr. Owen's music, the orchestra performed a Haydn symphony and the overture from Beethoven's Prometheus.

Clash! Bang! Boom! These were the sounds of Jazz Bands I and II doing their thing. The bands were formed several times a year by director Don Owens. According to Mr. Owens, "When I select program music, top priority goes to student-written compositions, and if a member wants to solo, he has that opportunity." Not only were the students encouraged to create their music, often they are asked to present it in concert.

Just how successful were Jazz Band I and II? One player remarked, "Jazz Band helps you with modern technique, by reading back to the roots of popular music." If it's worth doing, the Jazz Bands can play it.

The ETHS Choir participated in several Concerts throughout the year. According to Dr. Rosewall, Supervisor, "ETHS Choir was bigger and better." The most significent concert this year was Elijah in which 250 of the choirs' voices were featured.

Debators argue to fame

EVANSTONIAN

Supervised by both Ms. Lois Leubitz and Ms. Sheryl Robinson, the ETHS debate team this year had an extremely successful season. Over thirty-eight students on the Varsity, Junior Varsity, and Novice teams participated in over twenty-five tournaments, with the Novice debators winning one first place and several seconds, and the Junior Varsity debators winning two tournaments and clean-sweeping another. The Varsity team, who entered four teams into the State Finals, achieved the honor of having three of them qualify for the elimination rounds and one of them win.

"Success in debate can be primarily measured through the development of each student's speaking and reasoning abilities," explained Ms. Robinson. "By those measures, the ETHS debators have been most successful."

This year, members of the Computer-Math Club were taught how to use and program computers. By using Fortran, a computer language, they were able to communicate with computers both at school and elsewhere.

Fifteen seniors as editors, sixty juniors as reporters, and a group of photographers this year comprised the staff of the school newspaper, with Mr. John Reque as staff advisor.

"The Evanstonian is designed to be an educational experience for those involved in it, providing day-to-day learning about the workings of a newspaper," explained Ron Eisenberg, Editor-in-Chief.

The Quill and Scroll National Awards were given to the following members of the Evanstonian Staff: editorial writing, William Beatty, Ron Eisenberg; sports writing, Robert Neiman; news writing, Lisa Hsia; current events quiz, James Pinkerton. The Booster Club Award was given to Paul Wolfson, the Advertising/ Business Editor of the Evanstonian.

Musical clubs flourish

This year saw a number of club innovations, one of them being the Guitar Club. The Guitar Club was sponsored by Mr. Jerry Neiberg. "There were no formal lessons or instructions," explained Mr. Neiberg. "The whole idea was to have fun."

The Coin Club was a first for ETHS students this year. The Club sponsor, Mr. Clewell, feels, "The purpose of the club was to introduce the kids to all types of coins and their significance."

Recorder Ensemble performed in both the Christmas and Spring Festivals. Members also played in the Early Music Concert which featured music from the Renaissance.

The Science Fiction Club entered its first year under the sponsorship of Mr. Owen Hein. The club was created by people who enjoy reading and talking about science fiction. It also attempted to familiarize its members with some of the more obscure poets.

Ms. Linda Kaplan (Mi French teacher and French club advisor) and Ms. Liliane Durham (Ba French teacher) also sponsored Un Peu de Paris, an eight-day tour of that city, during which the students stayed at the homes of French families in Colombes, a suburb of Paris. An enthusiastic Ms. Kaplan commented on the trip: "The incorporation of family stays into the visit added a real cultural depth that couldn't have been achieved any other way."

The Israeli Culture Club saw a marked increase in attendence. They also published a newspaper and sponsored a Chanukah party.

This year, the Spanish Club sponsored their annual Pinata Party in the Old Faculty Dining Room. A mixture of tacos and sombreros were all a part of the occasion. Highlights of the party included the pinata breaking contest; the lucky winner received all the candy inside of the pinata.

This year the Russian Club incorporated its activities, such as singing and dancing, into the classroom. The Club attended a performance by the Grorgian Dance Ensemble from the U.S.S.R. They also sponsored a spring trip to the U.S.S.R.

For the German Club, it was an eventful year. Among its many activities were the Oktoberfest, held at the Oakton Community College. The German Club also sponsored its annual Christmas and carolling party.

The Latin Club this year sponsored several field trips. In addition to this they held a Christmas time "Saturnalia". One club member said, "I really enjoyed being a member of Latin Club. It gave me a chance to use my knowledge in practical experiences."

Mimes make movements

This year for the first time ETHS had a Mime Workshop. It was created and taught by Bacon senior Dan Garber. Members met regularly to rehearse, and performed both after school and outside ETHS.

"People are in the workshop because they want to be," said Dan. "We try to do new things with pantomime, exchanging ideas and critiquing each other. People really know more about mime than they think."

The Future Physicians Club, under the sponsorship of Mr. Arlia Swartzendruber, completed its first year. The club featured discussions led by medical representatives of various specialties. They also witnessed actual surgery at a Chicago hospital.

At one time in the life of ETHS there existed no Daily Bulletin. Teachers were given the responsibility of reading announcements to their students. However, times have changed and every morning at 10:40 a.m. the Daily Bulletin is heard throughout the hallways of ETHS.

According to Jeff Bulger, head of the Daily Bulletin Staff, "The Daily Bulletin is a service put on by the school for the students. It's there if they need it."

The amount of students interested in reading the Bulletin is astounding. When tryouts for staff positions were held this year, 42 students showed up. Students were picked for the quality of their voice and general reading ability.

This year the format has been changed so that two people read the Daily Bulletin instead of the original one. According to one member of the staff, Jeff Bulger, "It's difficult for two people to read it because of the setup." Another member, Shelly Goldstein, added, "Sometimes it's hard not to crack up."

Speech team reaches sectionals

The Evanston Speech team coasted itself to an easy win in both the District and Sectional tournaments. However, despite their victories it was Shelly Goldstein who managed the only win for Evanston at the state level. She took third in humerous interpretation.

This year the technical crew constructed five sets. The director, Mr. B. K. Siewerth, designed most of the sets. A versatile set for the Spring Repertory Festival and the ingenious, elaborate "Child's Play" set were included among these.

Students hold executive positions essential to the production of the show. Rachel Rubin, longstanding crew member spoke, "As a part of Croo, you learn through experience. Your pride and confidence grow when you help build a terrific set. We strive for perfection."

Murney makes move

The football team had an excellent season this year, with a varsity record of 8-2. Fifteen players made the All-Suburban League Team, a new record for ETHS.

"Pound for pound," said Head Coach Murney Lazier, "this is the best team we've had. We certainly were pleased to do so well in the All-State competition."

ETHS made the preliminaries for the newly-formed All-State competition, facing Glenbrook North H.S. Glenbrook North beat the Wildkits by only one point and went on to win the State Championship.

"The members of this year's team really worked hard, to their full potentials," continued Lazier. "Everyone pulled together to make for an excellent season."

This is Murney Lazier's last year as head coach here at ETHS. Lazier's coaching record during his 25 year tenure is astonishing. During his career he lost only 17 games. He brought the Suburban League Championship to ETHS 13 times. He is resigning to take a post at Lyons Township H.S. as athletic director.

"Of course I leave with some sadness", said Lazier. "But I'm looking forward with great enthusiasm to a new challenge."

Evanston bids a fond farewell to Murney Lazier, the cornerstone of ETHS football.

Booters regain hydrant

"Last year was a poor season, but we've moved back to the top, and feel ready to make our move next year," was the way in which Dr. Kenneth McGonagle, coach of the ETHS Varsity Soccer team, summed up the team's season. This was demonstrated by a satisfactory 11-4-2 record. The booters finished second in the Suburban League. Though they beat several good teams, the team was disappointed not to take the league title, and to lose twice to Waukegan.

This year ETHS placed five players on the All Suburban League Team. These players were Mike Ducharme, Charles Gardiner, Steve Jambois, Gus Eliopoulos and Richard Jackson. This year Charles Gardiner, who made nine goals, was the leading scorer. A record was set by Mike Ducharme, who made fourteen assists.

Though injuries depleted the team, Bill Brennen, in crutches, was made an assistant coach. He was in charge of the second unit nicknamed Brennen Bandits. They relieved the starting team for ten minutes at halves.

Coach McGonagle commented, "The pleasing part of the season was the depth the team developed in playing. Many participated in the games through their perseverence."

Trackettes truck distances

The first Girls' Cross Country team in ETHS history made its debut during the 74-75 season.

Due to the fact that no other school had a full cross country team, ETHS was only able to participate at an invitational meet. Evanston runners did well in the meet. Katie Murphy and Eva Zielonka did exceptionally well, taking second and third. Coach Huff expressed her pride in them by saying; "Both girls displayed courage and determination, and all have promising futures as distant runners."

The team is continuing its workouts in preparation for next year, when it is hoped that more schools will have teams.

The Evanston Boys' Cross Country team maintained its strong running tradition in the 74-75 season, with a 5-2 record and a place in the Suburban League.

The season was successful for the Harriers in other respects as well; the team earned fifty-nine awards this year, the greatest number in the twenty-eight year history of the sport at ETHS. Especially outstanding was first year senior Arni Salazer, who ran the highest place an ETHS runner has earned in five years.

Icemen defend state title

The ETHS icemen were the Chicago Metropolitan High School Hockey League Champions for the second year in a row. Battling against major teams, they won the Scholastic Cup as well. Two outstanding players, Tom Pigozzi and John Llywellyn, were voted onto the All-State Team. Coach Nat Bilsky said that the team gelled at the end of the season, enabling it to play excellently against tough competition. He felt that the team worked well together and hopes it will do as well next year.

The ETHS golf team swung its way to an auspicious season, racking up 12 wins, 6 losses and the Suburban League Championship. Although Dan Deffelson, who placed fifth in the Suburban League, won't be coming back next year, Coach Dobbie Burton feels that the prospects for next year are pretty good.

Almost equally as successful this year was the ETHS water polo team coached by Mr. James Blickenstaff. Though they lost four out of ten games, they reached a turning point at their victory over Glenbrook North. From there, ETHS went into state playoffs, and beat two teams that had previously beaten them. Ultimately ETHS claimed the title of fourth in state. Even though much of the team's support came from graduating seniors, Coach Blickenstaff has hopes for next year. He is especially counting on junior Fritz Wiegman, an All-State water polo champion, to continue shining for ETHS.

Cagers' season superb

The ETHS Varsity Basketball team made it to the Sectional Tournament this year, took first place in the Niles West Tourney, and won as Regional Tournament Champions, to name a few of the highlights.

"All in all, I was very pleased with the team this year," commented Jack Burmaster. "We had a veteran-type team that responded well to my coaching. I have nothing but the highest praise."

Two varsity players were voted to All-Suburban League. Junior varsity had an 8-6 season, sophomores ended 15-6, winning second place in the Evanston Tournament, and a first as Notre Dame Tourney Champs. Freshmen A team won 14 and lost 2, ending as Notre Dame Tourney and Suburban League champs. Freshmen B ended a 13-2 season as Suburban League Co-champs.

Another highpoint for Coach Burmaster was his promotion. Burmaster will serve as Evanston's Athletic Director. Burmaster feels the new position will be quite a challenge. He added, "It's an opportunity I simply can't pass up."

The Girl's Basketball team had almost as equally successful a season as the boys. In their second year of a complete season of competition, the team tied with New Trier for first place in the Suburban League. Coached by Janice Giacinti, the ETHS team played well against tough competition. The Varsity cagers won eight games and lost two, while the Junior Varsity players won eight games and lost only one.

Suburban league captured

The boys' swim team won every meet this year but one and went on to win the Suburban League championship.

This was the last year for the Suburban League; next year ETHS will be competing in the newly created Central Suburban League. "It's an overall stronger group," said Coach Dobbie Burton, a little apprehensively. "We are sure going to miss the guys who are graduating this year. They're just about the strongest group we've ever had."

"Super Shirley," captain of the girl's swimming team, led the way to ETHS's tie for second place in the Suburban League. Shirley Russman, whose lightening-fast butterfly set a new record this year, will be sorely missed by the team when she graduates in June. The team also loses top performers Cindy Ross and Nancee Miller. Ms. Tershel, coach of the team since its formation, will also be leaving at the end of the year. However, Ms. Tershel is quite optimistic about the coming year. "The team will have a very strong group of juniors next year," she commented. "The team will also be reinforced by the incoming freshmen. Our main concern is finding a new coach."

Girls were successful

The ETHS girls' gymnastic team, coached by Ms. Mitrovic, had an excellent year. The team won five conference meets and only lost one. They also left the final meet victoriously. At the final meet Sara Raedle placed second on floor, Anita Lee second on vaulting, Marti Traxler second on bars, and Anita Lee first on beam in beginners. In intermediate, Connie Kitazumi placed second on beam and second in the all-around competition.

The team also hosted the first Evanston Invitational Meet. All the events were optional, so each girl performed their individual routine. Evanston also won this meet.

This was the first year Ms. Mitrovic coached the team, and she felt that many of the freshmen showed good potential.

With winners there must always be losers, but unfortunately those losers were on the Evanston Gymnastic team. It was summed up by the new varsity coach, John Brinkworth, who said, "For Evanston, with its tradition of excellence and being number one, it just wasn't a good year."

attributed to the reduction in the number of coaches. Instead of the normal four, there were only two. Mr. Mark Watman, the freshmen coach, was the only other one. According to Mr. Watman, it is at the freshmen level where most of Evanston's strength was located.

Standouts on the varsity level were Mike Schmidt, the strongest member of the team. He went to the state finals and took a ninth in the all-around event. Paul Blake, a junior, was a district and sectional qualifier on the sidehorse. John Sillsdorf, a junior, qualified for both districts and sectionals on the tramp.

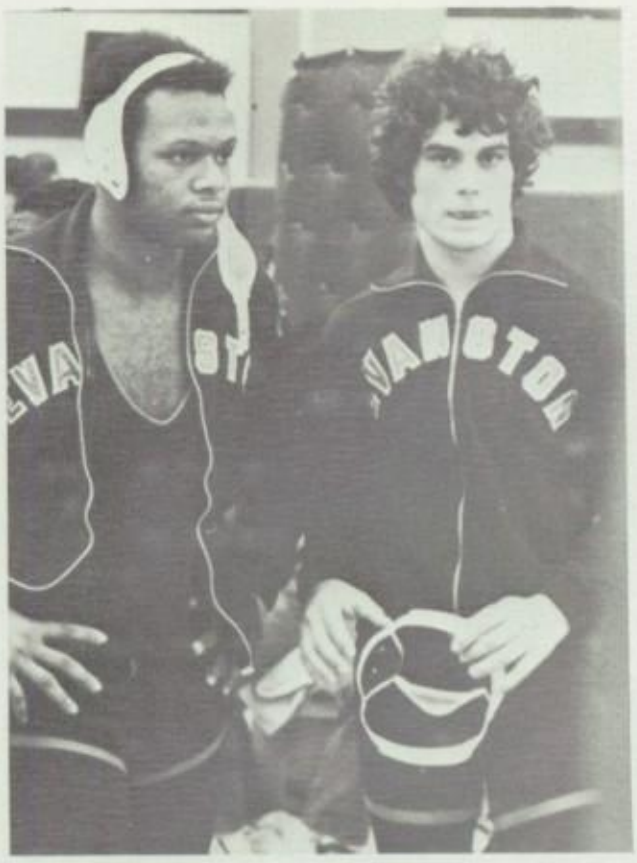
Wrestlers prove worthy



Although the Evanston Grapplers posted less than a .500 season with an 8-9 record, the Kits proved their worth in post-season tournament competition.

In the words of Coach Elias George, "It was a fine year, not in terms of the win-loss column, but in terms of our fine performance in the districts and sectionals."

The Kits were led by seniors Tony Engel, Stanley Jackson, and Son Nguyen, all of whom placed in the sectionals, but it was sophomore Ken Whittaker who represented the Kits downstate where he managed to win a fourth place for his efforts.

Spikers, smashers superb

The ETHS girls' badminton team played very well this year, ending the season with a record of seven wins and one loss. The team also won second place in the Suburban League.

"The competition was far stiffer this year than last year," commented Coach Barbara Hall. "There is a definite skill increase among the teams in the league."

Individual team members did exceptionally well, placing high in meets and at the Invitational at New Trier West. Coach Hall summed up the season saying, "This was a very young group, and quite different from other years. I really enjoyed working with the team; it was great."

The ETHS girls' volleyball team did equally as well this year. They lost their first game to Highland Park, but won every following game. The team's final record was six wins and one loss.

Tracksters, trackettes triumph

The girls track team had an outstanding season this year. Not only did they win the district meet, but they placed several members in the state competition. Two of the more exceptional performers were Pam Page and Kathy Pannier. Page won the 50 yard dash at the district and conference meets and was on the 440 yard relay team that won third place in the state. Pannier was second in conference and district meets in the 440 yard run and on two district winning relay teams. The team was coached by Ms. Karen Huff.

The boys' track team had an excellent season, but did not match their previous efforts. Varsity Coach Ron Helberg summed up the season this way: "We had a 14-1 season which was a very respectable record, but we had the potential for a much better season."

Despite all their winnings, the Kits only qualified one player for state competition. Nat Page managed to receive enough points to place ETHS eighth on the final all-around standings. Page placed first in the high jump and second in the 120-yard hurdles. He set a high jump record with his jump of seven feet.

Ozzie goes pro

The Evanston Boys' Baseball Team had an excellent year. They won districts and Suburban League. According to Coach McGonagle, "The team performed magnificently. They worked quite well together and this might be the reason behind the team's successful season."

On this year's team was one of the finest athletes in ETHS history. Brian Rosinski was named to the all-league, all-state, and all-American teams. He batted a record .517 average. Rosinski was drafted first round by the Chicago Cubs.

Other outstanding players were Brian McCaslin, Brian Walker, Eric Larson, and Harry Eberts who were all suburban league finalists.

"I loved every minute of it, I really did." This was the way in which one member summed up the ETHS girls' softball team season. Perhaps her enthusiasm was one of the reasons behind the girls' good softball season.

"I was very proud of the girls. They placed first in Suburban League," said Coach Phyllis Wideman.

Netmen swing in State

The boys' tennis team had a really smashing season this year. Although their record was only 6-4, the team managed to place two of its members, Larry Lubin and David Shanks, as the number three doubles players in the state. Coach Andersen feels much regret at seeing the outstanding senior class leave, but looks forward to next year's group. According to Andersen, "This year's freshmen are so good that many will play varsity next year."

The girls' tennis team also had an excellent season, finishing third at the Suburban League meet. Coach Alice Simpson's major winners were Sandy Deane, Julie Dowdall, and Michelle Besant.

Lacrosse, rugby play .500

This year's lacrosse season was summed up by Varsity Coach Murney Lazier as "the season that almost was." The ETHS Varsity Lacrosse Team had a final record of 2-2, with New Trier East responsible for both losses. One player commented, "We didn't quite have the team to beat New Trier."

With next year's loss of both coach Lazier and Sophomore Coach John Stamos, the future of Lacrosse here at ETHS is tenuous at best. Coach Lazier is optimistic, however. He said, "If the players want the sport, and are willing to work at it, lacrosse will remain a permanent feature on the Evanston sports scene."

"I can only be pleased," said Rugby Club sponsor Bruce Mitchell, "with the team's performance. I only hope that we do as well next year." The team had a 3-3 record with defeats coming from New Trier West and Loyola, the state champions. The 40-man squad also made the playoffs.

Intramurals: a Superstar is born

"Intramurals are really good, because you don't have to go through all the hassle of practice and uniforms and everything." This was how one participant summed up the ETHS Intramural program.

Teams are formed informally, and they play each other in tournaments. Sports such as football, softball and basketball were offered. Also sponsored was the annual "Superstars" contest, where individuals competed in sports. Some individual events in the "Superstars" contest were basketball free throw, archery and track.

One almost-Superstar commented, "I didn't win anything, but the fun made it worthwhile."

Seniors tearful, joyful at end

The celebrations and ceremonies were over all too quickly for the Class of '75 which bid a final farewell to ETHS at the prom and at the four graduations.

This year's prom was held at the Palmer House on June 5, and was attended by seniors and invited faculty chaperones, as well as assorted other dates and well-wishers. The two bands which played at the dance were Urban Crisis and Freewheeling.

Bacon School was the first to graduate its seniors on June 11 in the auditorium. The ceremony featured many student speakers as well as mime and dance numbers performed by Bacon seniors. Dr. Robert Lodine was the guest organist and the Class of '75 presented choral numbers to celebrate their commencement.

Michael School commencement took place also on June 11. Steven Levon and Barry Skolnick played trumpets for both the processional and the recessional. Four students spoke on the theme of "Make the Most of It," and were joined by performances of poems, oral interpretation, a vocal duet, and a violin solo.

The final two graduations took place on Thursday, June 12, also in the ETHS auditorium. Boltwood School's commencement featured an organ solo by senior Carlis Moody, and contained many musical interpretations, some incorporating the talents of students from other of the four schools. A dance number was also presented by three Boltwood senior girls.

The last school to receive its diplomas for 1975 was Beardsley School, which graduated at 8:00 on June 12. This ceremony began with the presentation of the Colors and continued with many unique performances and speeches. An original poem was interpreted in dance by Julie Hacker and Marian Macsai. Wendy Waters also performed a dance number. Two speeches, a vocal solo by Lisa Brodkey, and a humorous interpretation by Shelly Goldstein helped to round out the program.
